VOL. XXII.—NO. 6558

PORTLAND, OREGON: THURSDAY, MAY 4, 1882.

PRICE—TEN CENTS.

GENERAL NEWS.

Death of Hon. Horace Maynard, Ex-Postmaster General.

EX-COLLECTOR TOM MURPHY AFTER ROBERTSON'S PLACE.

Horrible Death of a New Hampshire Journalist—Racing and Sporting Notes.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

KNOXVILLE, May 3.—Hon. Horace Maynard dropped dead of heart disease this morning upon getting out of bed.

Notables from New Zealand.

CHICAGO, May 3.—At the Grand Pacific is domiciled a party of distinguished people from New Zealand, traveling through this country to Europe on pleasure and business combined. Among them are U. L. Rodgers, of Invercargill; Mr. Charles Pharrazyn and family, of Wellington; Mr. Herman Nashelski, of Dunedin, and Mr. Hayman, of the same place. Nashelski is accompanied by his wife and daughter, and is a leading merchant. Mr. Pharrazyn is accompanied by a wife and six children, and is a large wool grower and wealthy capitalist. Mr. Hayman is a member of the very extensive firm of P. Hayman & Co., of Birmingham, England; Melbourne, Australia, and the Cape. These gentlemen are charmed with what they have seen in this country.

A Lecture on Chinese Women.

Mrs. W. P. Bainbridge, of Providence, R. I., gave an address on the women of China and Japan at the Second Baptist church last evening. She has spent considerable time in those countries in missionary work. The women, she said, exerted a powerful influence in Asia and through them that country will most readily be converted to christianity. Still they are very degraded and very ignorant. "I saw a Chinaman one day going to market with two baby girls in a basket and said he hoped to get as high as 40 cents apiece for them." Said the speaker, "not one woman in a hundred can read, but they are willing to learn, especially from teachers of their own sex. They are slowly rising from their degradation and are gaining new ideas of freedom, so that in time they may even be equals of their husbands. Even now a mother-in-law is recognized as powerful, and in some large families she rules as a monarch. 'Have you got a mother-in-law?' is one of the first questions asked of every stranger in China."

A Great Improvement to be Divulged Soon.

The Inter-Ocean makes a mysterious but prominent announcement that an advance step in railroading has been discovered which will revolutionize that service and put it fifty years ahead of the age. It says officials of six of the largest and most enterprising roads in Mississippi valley have been for two days discussing the new improvement, the notice of which will be announced in a few days.

Indian War Notes.

DENVER, May 3.—Republican Santa Fe special: The following dispatch was received here at midnight: A column of Mexican troops, to-day, under command of Col. Garcia, arrived at [illegible]. Col. Forsyth is in pursuit of the Indians and has killed 79; also taking 33 prisoners. The courier bringing this information to Deming arrived on foot, pushed so hard by Indians that he had to abandon his horse, barely escaping with his life. He reports about 100 Indians between Deming and Tresjouinas.

Danger of a New Outbreak.

LARAMIE CITY, Wy., May 3.—Acting under recent orders the troops at Fort Washakie have been compelled to leave the post, and there being no provision made for defense, the women and children at the post are now fearing a general massacre at any moment by Indians. Civilians are arming themselves to protect the post, but it is feared that they would not be able to withstand the Indians, who are greatly excited over the killing of Jack.

Collector Robertson's Possible Successor.

Thomas Murphy of New York city who has made frequent visits to the national capital since Arthur became president and who is no where, is an applicant for the collectorship of New York. That Robertson will be superseded at no distant day by Murphy is probable.

Movements of the Titled Party.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Referring to the movements of a distinguished party which arrived yesterday by the Gaelic, James Ashbury, M. P., the English yachtsman, told a reporter: "I shall go with them to Manitoba and I shall leave them there, and Lord Elphinstone, I think, will return after a brief visit to Manitoba, but Stannant and Mr. Brand are going across the continent to San Francisco."

Death of W. J. Middleton.

W. J. Middleton, a well-known bookseller and publisher of this city, died yesterday. He was a native of New England and came to this city from Boston. For a number of years he was in the employ of J. S. Redfield, one of the leading publishers of this city, many years ago. He subsequently bought out Redfield, taking his list and continuing the business on his own account. He was at one time New York purchasing agent for Roman, the well-known San Francisco bookseller.

An Old Man Lost.

It is ascertained that Gen. Banks' missing friend J. E. A. Jeggles, of the firm of Pratt & Babb, of Boston. He is a man of 67 years of age and weighs 250 pounds. At 2 o'clock he had not returned to his hotel, and police were sent out, the chief ordering a thorough search for his whereabouts.

A Clever Attempt at Smuggling.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Three old books which arrived by mail from Europe to-day were found to have been neatly hollowed and filled with diamonds. The jewelry was valued at $3500. The package was addressed to a leading jeweler at Cincinnati, but found its way to the custom house.

A New Transcontinental Line.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The Atlantic & Pacific Interocean railway was organized to-day, with Nathaniel P. Banks as president. It is claimed by the company that the time by the route from New York to San Francisco can be made in five days.

A Valuable Load.

NEW YORK, May 3.—The steamer Wyoming, which sailed yesterday, took T. P. O'Connor, M. P., Rowell, the English pedestrian and several valuable trotting horses.

Railroad Report.

CLEVELAND, May 3.—Directors of the Lake Shore railroad were re-elected to-day. Annual reports confirm the figures heretofore published. Decrease in gross earnings, $778,000, or four and fifteen hundredths per cent.; increase in expenses $560,000, or eight and twenty-six hundredths per cent.; decrease in net earnings, $1,338,000, or 19.60 per cent.

An Official's Terms.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 3.—A heavy stockholder in the Louisville & Nashville road states that Albert Fink will accept the presidency at $25,000 a year, if the company will pass two dividends and expend the money on needed improvements.

Agent Missing.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., May 3.—E. E. Young, local freight agent of the C., I., St. L. & C. at this point has been missing since Sunday and fears are entertained that his accounts are short. The books are being examined.

A Poor Law Repealed.

ROCHESTER, May 3.—The law against use of instruments in united presbyterian churches has been rescinded by a vote of all presbyteries, as follows: For repeal, 618; against, 696.

Burned to Death.

DOVER, N. H., May 3.—The dead body of Judge Varney was found under the wall of the burned church last night. He was editor of the Dover Inquirer, a weekly journal, and the Daily Republican.

Attempted Suicide.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Minnie Clapp, aged 23, daughter of Nicholas C. Clapp, a well known broker of Wall street, attempted suicide to-day by drowning.

Highway Robbery.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., May 3.—Alonzo W. Barton, who runs the express between Seabrook, N. H., and Haverhill, was stopped on the mail road by three men and robbed of $400 yesterday.

Verdict Rendered.

CINCINNATI, May 3.—In the Smith law trial yesterday a verdict of guilty was rendered. The penalty was not announced, pending motion for new trial.

Railroad Connection Made.

TAYLOR, Texas, May 3.—At 6 o'clock last evening connection was made at this point between the extension of the Missouri, Kansas & Texas railway from Fort Worth and the Santa Fe, International & Great Northern railroad, extending to Laredo on the Rio Grande. Through trains will at once be put upon this route, and it will be made a trunk line between St. Louis and the border of Mexico.

TAYLOR, Tex., May 3.—The last spike connecting the Missouri Pacific and I. & G. N. railways was driven with imposing ceremonies at 5 o'clock this evening.

TELEGRAPHIC SPARKS.

The British steamer Glamis Castle arrived at San Francisco yesterday with 919 passengers.

One of the steam fire engine houses at Newark, N. J., burned on the 1st inst. Loss $25,000.

Anti-prohibitionists of North Carolina will meet in mass convention at Raleigh, June 7th.

The postoffice department at Washington was closed as a tribute to the memory of Hon. Horace Maynard, yesterday, that gentleman having been postmaster general at one time.

The greatest proof of the genuine merit of an article can be found in the amount of patronage it receives, and the thousands of testimonials respecting the Great German Remedy, prove most conclusively that it is all that it is represented to be. Mr. T. J. Murphy, who resides at No. 51 Debevoise street, Brooklyn, N. Y., is one of the fortunate ones. I rubbed St. Jacobs Oil all over my left leg for several days, and it cured as pretty a case of rheumatism as ever was fastened on to a man. I never had the disease before this winter. But as almost everybody else was suffering with it, I guess I had to be in the fashion. So one day I feel a nasty sort of pain creeping down my left limb, but I didn't think much of it until night, when it began to make me groan. I had seen the advertisement of St. Jacobs Oil, and had heard something about it from friends, I therefore got a bottle of it and went for my left leg. I did not stint myself in the use of the Oil, but rubbed half a bottle on the first time. The first application gave me great relief, and I kept upon it until the next day, when I used the remainder in the bottle. That settled it. I have not felt any rheumatic pain since. So much for that trial.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 3.

In the senate Voorhees offered a resolution instructing a committee of investigation to ascertain whether corrupt or improper influence had been brought to bear on any member of the senate in regard to the bill pending before the senate finance committee to amend laws regarding distilled spirits in special bonded warehouses; also to inquire if any attempt had been made to bring any such improper or corrupt influence to bear on any member of the senate to secure the passage or defeat of the bill, the committee to send for persons and papers and report as early as practicable.

The resolution went over and senate devoted the remainder of the time reserved for calendar to the political disabilities bill repealing the statute prohibiting appointments of ex-confederates in the army or navy.

Ingalls moved to amend so as to constitute, but confine its prohibition to officers who left the army or navy to enter the confederate service, and moved to commit the bill and amendment.

Objection to the latter motion was made on the democratic side but the chair ruled it in order and discussion was resumed, Saulsbury and Garland favoring the bill as reported.

Lively personal interchanges as to the object and results of the late war as seen from northern and southern stand points followed between Ingalls, Butler, Hampton, Saulsbury and Voorhees. The bill went over till to-morrow.

The galleries, which had been more or less full, rapidly thinned out.

The bill to create a court of appeals came up as unfinished business, and its consideration occupied the remainder of the day without action. The committee amendment in regard to appeals in patent and copy right cases was rejected. This leaves the jurisdiction of the supreme court in such cases as at present, without regard to the amount in controversy. The remaining amendments of the judiciary committee were agreed to.

Garland moved an amendment providing that appeal of writs of error to the supreme court taken before passage of the act shall not be affected by it. Adopted.

Butler moved an amendment requiring judges to be removed from one circuit to another, saying in connection that the judge in the circuit in which he (Butler) lived was unfit to discharge his duties and some of his acts were a disgrace to American citizenship.

Ingalls said he did not know of what the senator from North Carolina complained, unless it was the recent rulings in election cases. The testimony in these cases, if true, disclosed much more disgrace to American citizenship than had ever before been perpetrated on this continent. He wanted the fact noted, if such was the fact, that the object of Senator Butler was to avoid the administration of a judge obnoxious to the people of his state.

Butler hastily rejoined that he acknowledged the superiority of Ingalls' facilities over his own for acquiring information concerning events transpiring in South Carolina, but he thought he would be able to demonstrate at the proper time that a certain circuit judge had been guilty of conduct that was disgraceful to American jurisprudence, notwithstanding the opinion of the senator from Kansas.

Sherman asked whether the reference now made was to Judge Bond.

Butler replied affirmatively. The amendment was rejected. Yeas, 17; nays, 33.

Butler offered two additional amendments: 1st, that after establishment of courts of appeal no appointments to the supreme bench be made until the number of justices is reduced to six; 2nd, prohibiting criminal cases, except those concerning revenue and admiralty, or those of maritime jurisdiction, from being instituted in U. S. courts by information, and requiring their prosecution to be by indictment and presentation of grand jury. Both were voted down.

Vest offered an amendment with the view of a radical change in the present practice as modified upon suggestion of Davis, of Illinois. It provides no circuit or district judge before whom a cause or question may have been tried or heard in a district or circuit shall sit on trial or hearing of such cause or question in an appellate court. The amendment was pending at adjournment.

Testimony in the soldiers' home investigation with a written report was printed.

A bill prescribing regulations for the soldiers' home, and for other purposes, was introduced by Ingalls.

House amendments to the bill for sale of Miami Indian lands in Kansas was concurred in and bill passed. Senate adjourned.

House.

Henderson reported the bill allowing the army to be used as a posse comitatus; recommitted.

House went into committee on the tariff commission bill.

Springer opposed and Burrows favored the bill.

Blackburn replied to Burrows' criticism upon the democratic party at some length and then passing on to discussion of the tariff he declared a tariff for protection was pillage and robbery. The government received its revenue from two sources duties and internal taxation, and it was proposed the latter should be abolished in order that protection might be perpetuated. He acknowledged the internal revenue system was iniquitous, but maintained it beggared few people, and that a protective tariff, if we abolished revenue, would be reduced to the extent of $135,000,000 a year, and to that extent taxpayers would be relieved; but if the tariff were revised and the revenue be cut down to the amount of $135,000,000, the burden of taxed people would be lightened to an extent variously estimated at from two to five times that amount. The passage of the pending bill was a parting forever by the American congress with its power over the system of taxation. It has been illy considered, is hasty, dangerous and unconstitutional legislation.

Kenna, of West Virginia, while maintaining the proper method of raising tariff was by direct legislation by congress, declared his intention of supporting the pending bill as the only possible measure which could be passed in direction of revision.

The committee then rose.

Belmont of New York offered a resolution calling upon the president for complete copies of any and all orders and instructions from the navy department to the commanding officers of the South Pacific squadron during 1881, and also copies of any and all letters, communications or reports of such commanding officers to the navy department during the same period; referred to committee on foreign affairs.

By Representative Updegraff of Iowa, from select committee, respecting election of president and vice president. Favorable report was made upon the bill to carry into effect provisions of the constitution respecting the election of president and vice president. A complete review of the whole question is embraced in Updegraff's report, which accompanies the bill. The report says in effect that the bill is a compromise of a great variety of views on the part of the committee. The first eight sections provide a scheme for a count by the two houses of congress and are substantially the same as the senate bill. Section 9 provides that "notwithstanding the congressional count, the title to office of president or vice president may be tried and determined by action in the nature of quo warranto. It is provided proceedings in such cases shall have precedence over all other business, whether it was thought practicable to limit the time, it has been claimed any contest can be settled before the 4th of March. It is also claimed that in any schemes for a congressional count where each house has one vote and no umpire, there are only three courses: First—No vote shall be counted without concurrence. Second—That no vote shall be rejected without concurrence. Third—To define the class of cases, in one of which concurrence shall be necessary to reject, and another in which concurrence shall be necessary to count. It is claimed their position is impracticable and impossible; that no such disposition can be made under which a preferred class cannot by a political party interested in doing so, be changed beforehand into a case of another class, wherein a single house may throw out a state. This is illustrated by reference to transactions of the past." It is claimed that congress might as well provide either that all votes shall be counted, or that none shall be counted if either house objects. Also that there is in a presidential election the same field for controversy and judicial inquiry as in an ordinary popular election and just as much or more necessity for judicial determination, by which alone such disputes can be properly settled. Congress is denied such functions by the constitution and reference to courts in this matter, as in all disputes involving construction and interpretation of law, is the only constitutional method of disposing of all conceivable disputes.

Committee on military affairs made a favorable report upon the bill which has been adopted by the committee as a substitute for several bills referred them relating to retirements in the army. The bill provides that when an officer has served 35 years, either as officer or soldier in the regular or volunteer service, he shall, if he make application thereof to the president, be placed on the retired list, provided, however, that the provisions of this bill shall not apply to the general, lieutenant-general and present major generals of the army.

The speaker announced enrollment of the Chinese bill and affixed his signature and house adjourned.

THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

Smith & Alcott of Pilot Rock, have in their flock of sheep ten ewes that have three lambs apiece, all alive and thrifty.

Twin sons were recently born to Simeon Harvey and wife of Pilot Rock, Umatilla county, weighing respectively 12 and 16 pounds.

The Willow creek country in Umatilla county, is said to contain a large body of fine farming lands. As yet but few preemptions and homesteads have been taken.

The cold weather during the latter part of April, played sad havoc with the young lambs in many localities. Mr. Dobbins, of Union, lost 42 out of [illegible] in 24 hours and others suffered proportionally.

Pendleton Tribune: Last week Postmaster Lavermore received the welcome intelligence that the increase of business in the post-office called for an increase of salary. This week he received a similar announcement—another raise—and now his salary amounts to $1300 per year. He was postmaster here when it paid but $15 per year.

Prineville News: It would seem that the question of the probable value of our sage brush land, especially that which is situated in the valleys, and with elevation above the neighboring streams of from 50 to 100 feet, had been determined at last. In 1881 forty bushels of wheat to the acre were raised on such lands. Mr. Patton, who is a practical farmer, was convinced of the practicability of irrigating such lands, that have hitherto been looked upon as almost entirely valueless, except for grazing purposes, and with industry and easy labor [illegible] Mr. Patton last week refused an offer of [illegible] for his farm. The most beautiful locations can be found in this part of Wasco county. Thousands of acres of land, level as a floor, almost, can be selected in one body, in many places.

FOREIGN NEWS.

Great Rejoicing in Ireland over the Release of Parnell and Comrades.

GLADSTONE'S CHANGE OF POLICY RIDDLED BY HIS OPPONENTS.

Death of Gabriel Ravel, the Celebrated Pantomimist of 50 Years Ago, at Toulouse, France.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

DUBLIN, May 3.—There was great excitement on the news being received of the resignation of Forster. Crowds gathered on the streets and cheered for Parnell and groaned for Forster. [illegible] city playing national airs. News of the [illegible] was quickly transmitted through the country and soon fires were blazing on Wicklow hills. There was spontaneous rejoicing everywhere. At Limerick many people danced with joy, shouting "Forster is gone. God save Ireland." [illegible] at Waterford and [illegible] were general. Parnell, Dillon and O'Kelly were released at 11 to-night. Further changes at Dublin castle are expected. Thos. Henry Burke, under secretary, and Col. Hillier, inspector general of constabulary, will probably resign.

The Release of the Suspects.

There is little room to doubt that Parnell's liberation is the result of direct negotiation between himself and the government, and that he got the best of the treaty. A statement was made in several papers that some gentleman had visited Kilmainham and interviewed Parnell twice in one day. A question was asked in the house about the matter, and it now appears that Capt. O'Shea was the person who made the visit and did so as an ambassador of the government. The result is seen in the terms of peace. The terms included a complete change of policy, namely: Lord Cowper shunted for "a strong man of experience;" Forster becomes what Sexton called him on one occasion in the lobby, "a spiked cannon;" the release of all the suspects not charged with actual crime; the lapsing of the coercion act in September; the taking of the Irish members into consultation in the government of Ireland, and a measure to improve the land act. Gladstone's statement that a measure might be proposed to deal with secret societies is looked upon as a saving clause for appearances. With reference to Forster's successors rumor fixes it partly upon Shaw Lefevre, who, however, fears that he would not be re-elected from Cork if he accepted the post, and partly upon a divided secretaryship between Sir Charles Dilke and Shaw Lefevre. Forster, it is thought likely, will be provided with a peerage or some valuable appointment.

The Irish Situation.

LONDON, May 2.—In the course of his remarks to-day, Gladstone said that the release of Davitt was totally distinct from the release of suspects, which was a question it might be right for the government to consider.

Northcote likened the government to a pendulum swinging from one side back to the other.

Chamberlain, president of the board of trade, or Shaw Lefevre, commissioner of works and buildings, will probably succeed Forster. If the former, Sir Chas. Dilke, under foreign secretary, will succeed to the presidency of the board of trade.

The Times says the policy now to be tried in Ireland is one of concession and conciliation, pure and simple.

Justin McCarthy presided at a special meeting of the Irish parliamentary party when Bernard Molloy offered a motion thanking the Canadian parliament for adopting a resolution in favor of autonomy for Ireland. Sir Joseph McKenna seconded the motion and it was passed.

LONDON, May 3.—In commons, Gladstone replying to Callan, member for Meath, said he had not yet received the resolution of the Canadian legislature with regard to Ireland, and therefore could not present it to the house. As to any action upon it, the matters referred to concerned the imperial legislature alone. As to the position of the Canadian address relating to the matter will in discretion of the executive, it had the government's close and constant attention, before the suggestion contained in the address reached them in any shape from any quarter.

Goschen created a sensation in the house when he said: "As Gladstone believes a social revolution exists in Ireland, it will have to be proved how far peace and order is promoted by the release of social revolutionists."

Land league members of parliament are trying to persuade Parnell to be in the house Thursday, when Forster makes his explanation.

Gladstone's Change of Base.

LONDON, May 3.—Seldom has it been the lot of a premier to announce a change of policy. Much derision was manifested in the house this evening, and Gladstone seemed to feel himself in a false position. His anxiously awaited statement was made with an air of timidity quite foreign to him and with a brevity of phrase altogether unusual. His embarrassment was especially evident when he endeavored to show consistency and unchanging purpose on the part of the government, while to the sense of the whole house he was announcing a retreat all along the line. The mocking laughter and bitter storm wherewith from time to time his words were greeted made the task painful, though he tried hard to put a bold face on the matter. It was the general feeling of the house, even on the ministerial side, that Forster had been made a Jonah of. That he entirely disapproved of the policy of the government in releasing the three members of parliament and the other suspects. It was evident from his curt, stern answers to questions put to him by the Irish police and magistrates. His full statement, or apology, as it is being called, will not come until Thursday, owing to the necessity of obtaining the personal sanction of her majesty to his retirement. He, however, took no trouble to conceal his disgust. The land league party are mild and conciliatory. A broken promise of anything from that quarter means a good deal. They have in fact beaten the government, and know it.

Some Pertinent Remarks.

LONDON, May 3.—The Times says: If Parnell will make use of his liberty to restore order, there may be immediate improvement in the condition of Ireland. The Standard asks if amnesty is to be real, on what ground can Davitt be excluded from it.

The Post says: The government is in despair, and like a desperate man, is playing a desperate game to retrieve its fortune.

The Hand of Fate.

The Times says if the latest daring change fails to vanquish disorder in Ireland there can be no doubt of the fate of the cabinet.

Jewish Emigration.

LEMBERG, May 3.—The number of Jewish refugees arriving here is constantly increasing. Yesterday 102 women and children, whose relatives had already emigrated, were forwarded to Hamburg, with 60 Jews from Jassy. The assembly of Polish Jews pronounced in favor of emigration to Palestine, and 700 families have applied to the emigration committee at Jassy for assistance to enable them to settle in Palestine.

A Jewish Exodus.

LEMBERG, May 3.—Yesterday the exodus of Jews from all parts of Russia commenced. As the foreign corn trade was almost entirely in Jewish hands the utmost confusion prevails in that industry.

Tips from Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 3.—The minister of marine has rejected Gen. Berdan's torpedoes.

Five iron-clads were kept in readiness last month to put to sea at a moment's notice for the purpose of carrying troops to Egypt, should the powers agree as to the necessity for Turkish intervention.

After Torpedo Boats.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 3.—Col. Hunki Bey, aide-de-camp of the sultan, starts for London to purchase torpedo boats. He will be accompanied by two officers, who will make it their special business to learn to handle torpedoes and launches.

Egyptian Affairs.

CAIRO, May 3.—The passage in the official version of the sentence of court martial in case of conspiracy of officers, raising the question of Ismail Pasha's civil list, has been suppressed.

The minister of war has ordered 50 Krupp guns.

A New Appointment.

Abdurrahman Pasha, formerly governor of Bagdad, is appointed president of the council.

Sparks from Spain.

MADRID, May 3.—The royal order has been gazetted nominating a committee of ten to examine the protests of mercantile classes against new taxes.

Three persons were killed and many injured by the explosion of the gunpowder factory at Bilboa.

Death of Gabriel Ravel.

TOULOUSE, France, May 3.—Gabriel Ravel, the famous pantomimist of the last generation, died here to-day, aged 72.

De Gallifet's Denial.

PARIS, May 3.—Gen. De Gallifet denies the story of the North German Gazette that he said Gambetta's return to power in France was necessary, as the present government was careless of French honor.

Death of Captain Browning.

PARIS, May 3.—Capt. Geo. L. Browning, 7th U. S. infantry, died yesterday.

Lieut. Danenhower in St. Petersburg.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 3.—Lieut. Danenhower was received by the emperor and empress yesterday. To-day he will visit the Grand Duke Alexis, the minister of marine and Gen. Ignatieff.

Gov. Thayer's Administration.

Tacoma News, Pierce Co., W. T., April 27.

It is very encouraging to a conscientious public officer to discharge his duty faithfully and when the time comes to nominate his successor to find himself snubbed and ignored by the men, the name of whose party he helped to raise [illegible] majority. We think that Gov. Thayer of Oregon will agree with us to this declaration. In every sense of the word his administration has been a credit to Oregon, but when the time came to nominate his successor, the convention did not so much as mention his name. [illegible]

DEATHS FROM FOUL AIR.

A Paper Read by Dr. O. B. Bird at the 7th Annual Meeting of the Oregon State Homeopathic Medical Society, May 3, 1882. Published by Vote of the Society.

The earth is surrounded by air, to the depth, presumably, of forty-five or fifty miles. Having weight, it is denser near the earth, at which place the pressure exceeds one ton to the square foot. Possessing the physical properties of a gas, it takes up any gases that present themselves and scatters them until no longer perceptible theoretically until the air and the gases are equally mixed, for this is the law of the diffusion of gases. By the operation of this law of diffusion noxious vapors accumulating from any cause are taken up and disseminated, and thus prevented from doing harm which would otherwise be inevitable. This law of chemistry is of the greatest conservative value, for without it the air of many places would be fatal to life, and that, too, without any warning being given, as gases are invisible.

In addition to this diffusion there is abundant provision for circulation. The air is constantly in motion, and we call these motions wind. There are the trade winds, blowing for months together over large tracts of land and water, and producing effects commensurate with the great body of air in which they operate. There are storms, accompanied by great wind, passing over a few degrees of longitude or latitude. There are hurricanes, limited to a few miles. Local currents abound everywhere, modified and directed by hills, valleys, trees and buildings.

But the greatest and most universal of all causes is the heat of the sun. This passes through the air without heating it, and falls upon the earth, heating that. Air, although not warmed by radiated heat, is warmed by contact. Thus the air next the earth becomes heated, and expands with a force equal to about one ton to every square foot, and by expansion becomes specifically lighter, when it rises and its place is taken by cooler and heavier air.

Thus the air is always in motion over the vast expanse of the earth's surface and where it meets contaminating gases, always keeping up a microscopic movement of its ultimate atoms. These two processes we will call circulation and diffusion.

A person to enjoy perfect health must have pure air to breathe. Nature has so adjusted the human body that nothing less than pure air, all the time, will properly purify the blood and insure the best health and the longest life. The truth of this statement will be taken, I think, as self-evident. I do not say cold air, mountain air, outdoor air, at all; I say pure air—air having nothing else mixed with it—and it may be either cold or warm, if it is only uncontaminated.

Air, theoretically, contains of four parts of nitrogen and one of oxygen, both invisible gases. These hold in suspension about one per cent of watery vapor. Air, practically, consists, in addition to these, carbonic acid, also an invisible gas, about five parts in ten thousand, or one twentieth of one per cent. The words pure air, therefore, may be understood to refer to the mixture of these three elements and water. In 100 parts there are 80 of nitrogen, 10 of oxygen, 1 of water and 1-20 of 1 of carbonic acid.

Carbonic acid is the substance most commonly present in impure air. This gas is given off by animals in breathing, by fires in burning and in vast quantities by volcanoes.

As before said, air containing 5 parts in 10,000 is practically pure. If this amount is increased to one per cent or less, dullness and headache will follow its respiration. Four per cent will cause sleep and ultimately death, and will extinguish flame; while ten per cent will destroy animal life in a few minutes.

Another gas, sulphuretted hydrogen, is even more deadly than carbonic acid. This gas is found during the decay of animal tissues or animal excrement, and is a dreadful foe to life. When inhaled it thickens the blood and turns it black. If diluted with 100 times its bulk of air it is still fatal to animal life.

This gas is directly productive of low malignant fevers. Epidemics of typhoid have been traced to its presence, either in water or air.

These two gases, carbonic acid and sulphuretted hydrogen, are the two things more destructive of human life than all other causes combined,—war not excepted.

In view of these facts, the commonest prudence dictates the necessity of every one being able to decide as to the presence of these two deadly agents, and of taking the necessary measures for purification.

We provide food and clothing and think it a dreadful thing if a person goes hungry for a few hours, and yet we live in rooms having every facility for the production of one or both these death-dealing gases, and wonder that ill-health is so frequent a visitor. The wonder to those who know the matter is, that it does not come oftener. I think I am safe in expressing the opinion that half our people, if deprived of half their usual quantity of food and supplied with pure air, would enjoy better health and live longer.

An approximate estimate of the purity of air as to carbonic acid may be made from the rapidity with which fire burns in it. Wherever fire will not burn, an animal cannot live; and when fire burns dimly, the purification of blood in the lungs will be correspondingly slow.

A few simple experiments will confirm these statements. It is not necessary to produce them here. The facts are universally known, and my object is to show that they are not heeded. The question before us is one of fact; we have simply to find whether people do live in impure air. The most casual observation will show that they do, the proofs being both perceptible to the senses, and demonstrable by calculation.

The great and ever-acting source of carbonic acid is respiration. Every breath of every animal not only takes from the air a part of its oxygen, but returns to it a large proportion of this poisonous gas. People are often surprised to hear that the amount is sufficient to extinguish flame. Breathe into a common tumbler, using one hand as a cover. With the other hand light a match; and removing the cover, lower the burning match into the tumbler, when it will be quickly extinguished. From this it is safe to conclude that a person could not live on air that had been once breathed. Expired air contains about 4 per cent of carbonic acid, and as each person breathes 17 times a minute, each time using 17 cubic inches of air, it follows that each pair of lungs needs 10 cubic feet of air per hour, and that nothing less will answer, for every particle of this is made unfit to support combustion, or, what is the same thing, unfit to support life.

Thus we see that a room ten feet square and ten feet high would furnish air enough to support one life for four days, provided, however, that the expired air could be conveyed away and not allowed to contaminate the remaining pure air. I doubt if a man could live half that time, if confined in such a room without apparatus.

The question of carbonic acid, therefore, is one of mathematics. If your rooms are not so ventilated as to supply 10 cubic feet of air per hour to each person and remove an equal quantity of foul air, you are simply committing slow suicide. In the language of high authority, "Every breath of impure air that is taken shortens the life, or impairs the health in a strictly mathematical ratio."

The other exterminator, sulphuretted hydrogen, produces effects more startling in character and of greater magnitude than those of carbonic acid; but with less uniformity. Improper ventilation of rooms and consequent accumulation of carbonic acid is well-nigh universal; while the other, and more deadly gas is never present unless the plainest laws of health are violated. This, however, is so often done, though generally through ignorance, that the aggregate effects are perhaps as great as those of carbonic acid.

The detection of this gas, when the quantity is at all large, is very easy by the sense of smell. The odor of old vaults, or of rotten eggs, is the odor of this gas, and is caused by its presence. For a delicate chemical test take a piece of sugar of lead the size of a pea, dissolve it in a tablespoonful of water; take a slip of the white border of a newspaper, moisten it with the solution, and hang it in the suspected locality. If the gas is abundant the paper will be black before you can hang it up. If a small quantity only is present the blackening will occur more slowly. If there is none the paper will remain white.

It seems impossible to arouse people to the importance of ventilation and cleanliness. Houses are building on every hand with no shadow of provision for supplying the air, which is almost as needful as food. Churches are generally just as bad, only larger. Public halls become stifling when occupied by large audiences for an hour or two. The galleries of theaters are positively offensive to the smell, and suffocating to the lungs. As the result of this carelessness people have headache, dulled powers of thought and general drowsiness; they often take cold, and many a victim can trace a serious illness to an evening spent in one of these places.

Now, having diagnosed the disease, it becomes necessary to prescribe a remedy. This opens the subject of ventilation, which I shall merely touch, and then give a few from the multitude of instances where disregard of the foregoing facts has led to disastrous results.

The remedy, then, is found in any device which will remove vitiated air and introduce fresh air at the rate of 10 cubic feet per hour for every person. Many plans have been tried, some of which accomplish all that is required in the most admirable manner. To some, no objection can be raised but the cost; of others it may be said that they operate only when fires are kept burning. Some reverse their action when the breeze is out, and so do more harm than good.

But there is a system, just now coming prominently to light which, so far as tried, does everything that is required, and does it thoroughly, uniformly and constantly, without attention from any one and without any change whatever being made in its arrangements to accommodate it to different kinds of weather. I refer to the invention of Messrs. [illegible], the latter gentleman being present with us to-day.

[illegible]

In 18[illegible], the [illegible] 80 became sick, and of these 8 had typhoid fever and 15 died. This place was carefully investigated by three physicians, who reported bad ventilation and drainage; which being remedied, the trouble was ended.

When the Quaker boarding school at Westtown was first occupied, the rooms were [illegible] brick fireplaces were used. Later, the fireplaces were carefully walled up and the rooms warmed by hot air furnaces. Not long after this a fever broke out in the school, which became so alarming that the school was closed and 150 pupils sent home. The house was carefully examined, fresh air supplied and the old chimneys used as ventilating flues, and no further trouble occurred.

In striking contrast was the juvenile asylum on Washington Heights, New York. The 600 children there gathered were, many of them, from the most unhealthy parts of New York city, and yet in two years there were but two deaths. This building was well ventilated and fully exposed to the sunshine.

Careful examinations have been made of air in many places, and while there is a surprising uniformity in the outdoor air, the indoor air varies with the number of occupants, time of occupation and facilities of ventilation. In Monsieur Dumas' lecture room, the amount of carbonic acid varied from 42 parts in 10,000 at the beginning of the lecture to 61 at its close. In various hospitals, asylums, railroad cars and saloons, the figures ranged from 11 to 50, while a well filled school room gave the startling proportion of 72 parts in 10,000, or about 3/4 of 1 per cent.

A body of men, called the Health of Towns Commission, in England, found greater mortality in the beautiful clean but air-tight factories than among the scavengers who, though engaged in filthy work, nevertheless had plenty of fresh air.

Carpenter, in his Physiology, page 326, says in substance that the habitual breathing of pure air is essential to the maintenance of that power of resisting disease which is the best measure of physical vigor. The fatality of epidemics is in precise ratio to the impurity of the air which has been habitually respired. Proper ventilation and sewerage would produce an enormous decrease of the death rate, and annihilate the fatality of epidemics. This statement has been fully substantiated even in the case of diseases not readily amenable to ordinary medical treatment, such as cholera and malignant fevers. Carpenter further adds that the rate of mortality brought to light by the board of health in England varied from 11 to 45 in the thousand, averaging 22. If all places were as healthy as the best, the death rate would be only half as great—saving nearly 200,000 lives every year in that country alone.

During the war a hospital in Baltimore, an old hotel, seemed to prove fatal to most of its inmates. Surgeons said they could scarcely cut off a finger there but the patient would die. Wounded men, who had been doing well, died soon after being sent there. For it must be remembered that fresh air is more needful to the healing of a wound than all the salves and plasters that can be applied.

In a church used as a hospital in Washington the ward-master pointed with pride to a large ventilator in the ceiling and afterwards discovered that it was only a painting.

From the foregoing cases we are forced to the conclusion that our breath is our worst enemy.

About one million people die every year in the United States, and nearly or quite half that number are simply killed by foul air.

Thorough ventilation and sewerage would save more than their cost every year, even in dollars and cents, by obviating funeral expenses and doctors bills.

CALIFORNIA.

A New Society Formed.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—A number of tanners and curriers met this evening and effected a temporary organization. The purpose of the organization is to discourage Coolieism and protect its members. A committee on permanent organization was appointed. The action of the trade and labor convention, which met here last week, was endorsed. Over seventy-five persons became members.

The Anti-Chinese Work.

The executive committee of the league of deliverance appointed at the recent anti-Chinese convention held a meeting this evening. They reported work progressing very encouragingly, and announce that they will be ready for enrollment of members to-morrow.

Baldwin Theater Closed.

Owing to financial embarrassments the Baldwin theater is temporarily closed. Manager Kelly hopes soon to reopen the theater on a sound financial footing. The past season has been one of constant loss to the management.

Anti-Debris Association.

SACRAMENTO, May 3.—The anti-debris convention called by the board of supervisors of Sacramento county convened to-day. Committees on organization and resolutions were appointed, and William Johnston, ex-senator of Sacramento county and member of the state board of equalization was elected president.

SACRAMENTO, May 3.—At a meeting of the debris convention this afternoon, President Johnson spoke reciting the evils to valleys from hydraulic mines that failed to impound the slickens. A number of gentlemen present spoke on the question, and a general interchange of views was had. Convention adjourned until evening.

A Hired Murderer.

SHASTA, May 3.—An Indian named Pike was brought to Shasta this evening and committed to jail on a charge of murdering James H. Hayes at Dog creek. Hayes was found dead in his cabin with a gunshot wound in his head. The Indian confesses the crime and says he was hired to kill Hayes by Robert [illegible], a merchant of Dog creek.

Bodie Mining Notes.

BODIE, May 3.—During the week Standard crushed 1082 tons, received 2320 ounces of crude bullion and shipped $17,780. It commenced the east cross-cut on the 1250 level, which is now in 25 feet in hard rock. The south drift of the 1000 level is 102 feet long in vein matter five feet wide, with some fair looking quartz in the face.

Noonday and North Noonday joint incline is down 230 feet below the 512 level and no water has been encountered yet.

Red Cloud east cross-cut on the 700 level is in 60 feet.

Bodie has crushed 126 tons, average pulp assays, $78 and shipped $10,874. The winze is down 48 feet. The vein in the bottom continues rich and widening. The drift on the same is 88 feet north and 85 south without notable change. The west cross-cut from the north drift on the 780 level is in 40 feet. Rocks are hard.

The Lent shaft is down 857 feet.

Bodie tunnel shipment $3100.

The Goodshaw east cross-cut on the 750 level is in 161 feet in favorable formation of clay and quartz.

Oro east cross-cut on the 714 level has advanced 8 feet.

Boston consolidated shaft is down 475 feet.

Union consolidated south drift on banner vein, is in 250 feet, the face in a heavy deposit of manganese with clay and quartz. The latter assays from $10 to $50.

Tioga has started a west cross-cut from the bottom of winze No. 2 below the 362 level. It is in 50 feet.

Snow is rapidly disappearing and many prospectors are going into the hills daily, Sweetwater mountains being the favorite field. Towns are springing up rapidly at the base of the mountains.

Surrendered Himself.

HOLLISTER, San Benito Co., Cal., May 3.—Albert Snibley, a young man 20 years old, came in to-day and surrendered himself for killing Peter Scott, a Frenchman, this morning, near Quien Sabe ranch, about 20 miles east of here. Snibley's father and the Frenchman had been having some trouble over a stock range in Quien Sabe valley which, according to Snibley's story culminated in the Frenchman shooting at him with a shotgun this morning. The gun was turned aside by Geo. McKnight, Snibley's companion, and Snibley fired in return, inflicting a fatal wound on Scott.

ARIZONA.

Stages Robbed in Arizona.

PHOENIX, May 3.—The Black canyon stages, both north and south, were taken in by robbers last night about 10 o'clock, within two miles of each other. The passengers were all robbed and the treasure boxes broken open. On the south-bound stage the passengers were relieved of guns and jewelry, and about $260 coin. The mail was untouched. Officers are in pursuit.

The stage which left here yesterday and the one which arrived here today, were both stopped by four robbers near Bumble Bee Station, on the Black canyon route, about 45 miles from Prescott. The mail was not molested. Express boxes were broken up and passengers held up for all their money and valuables. The outgoing stage had five passengers and the incoming stage none, the robbers taking each a horse from both stages.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Victoria Notes.

VICTORIA, May 3.—The steamship Geo. W. Elder arrived at 6 P. M. yesterday, three days and four hours from San Francisco.

Washington Territory.

A new school house 24x32 feet will shortly be built in Whetstone hollow.

Washington Ray was tried in the recorder's court at Dayton last week for an assault upon his sister. He was found guilty as charged, and the full penalty of the law was inflicted—a fine of $100 and costs.

The funeral services of the wife of Rev. J. B. Madison, who died at Dayton of smallpox, were held at that place last Sunday. Elder Whitcomb, of Walla Walla, conducted the services, and Excelsior lodge, I. O. O. F., attended in full regalia.

Walla Walla Union: The special school election held on Saturday excited more interest than any school election held in the city. Three hundred and twenty-one votes were cast. Of that number 245 were for the [illegible] tax, and 77 against it. [illegible]

WASHINGTON NEWS.

The Anti-Chinese Bill Still Awaiting Official Signatures.

A SCHEME FOR SURVEYING ALASKA BROACHED IN CONGRESS.

Senator Plumb makes some Pungent Remarks on Army Orders to Junketing Officers.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—In course of a discussion in the senate this evening on the question of printing, the report of the secretary of war showing how much money was used for traveling and similar purposes in the army, Senator Plumb said that this thing of ordering army officers from one place to another, that they might visit their families or sweethearts had become an outrage and should be stopped. He said it was very nice for an officer to have an order to visit a place he wanted to visit, because that order provided for all his expenses, and there was no necessity for so many officers here in Washington. He thought when the department expended the amount allowed by congress for such expenses, it ought to be the subject of congressional investigation.

An Unpleasant Story Denied.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—A story having gained considerable circulation that unemployed lobbyists, pretending to be newspaper correspondents, had raided the distillers who recently went to Washington and levied blackmail, H. H. Shufeldt, president of the National Distillers' Association, who is at the head and front of the movement to urge the passage of the pending whisky bill, makes the most complete and flatfooted denial thereof.

Congressional Notes.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Senate military committee to-day submitted a report of investigation of the soldiers' home at Washington, sustaining charges of abuses in management, extravagance, etc., and introduced a bill to carry out a reform.

Debate in the senate on repeal of the statute excluding ex-confederates from the army took a decided partisan shape. Ingalls said southern senators had in the last two years extolled Jeff Davis and Lee. Voorhees replied and Farley took part in the debate.

Chances of the Chinese Bill.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Journal's Washington: Some of the strongest opponents of the Chinese bill say they believe the president will veto the bill as it passed the house last night, but it is generally believed he will concede something and sign it, rather than endanger the party's chances on the Pacific coast by further delay.

England's Views.

The state department has been furnished a letter from Earl Granville to Minister West, concerning imprisoned American citizens in Ireland, in which he details at some considerable length the view taken by the English government on the subject and heretofore published, to the effect that American Irishmen in Ireland must submit like other Irishmen to the laws. He quotes at some length from Seward's dispatches during the rebellion, to show that the position taken by the British government now is the same as held by the United States government in 1866.

Survey of Alaska.

CHICAGO, May 3.—A Washington special says: The attention of many senators has been drawn to the provisions of a bill recently reported from the committee on territories, whereby a junketing trip to Alaska is provided in the name of making a "scientific survey" of that region by a few army officers. The secretary of the interior sent to the senate to-day a communication on the subject calling attention to the propriety of the United States geological survey of territories making this examination and doing it at once.

Too Late for Signatures.

House went into committee of the whole to-day before the enrollment of the Chinese bill and its comparison with the original manuscript had been completed, as the committee did not rise until 5 o'clock P. M., the announcement of its enrollment and signature by Speaker Keifer occurred too late to admit of its being signed to-day by the presiding officer of the senate, that body having previously adjourned.

Garfield Monument Association.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The Garfield monument association are getting liberal responses, but will prosecute the work of collecting vigorously.

GOV. HOYT'S PLAN

To Solve the Indian Problem and make the Indian Self-supporting.

GOOD FAITH.

Never break faith with the Indians.

INDIAN TERRITORY.

Keep all intruders out of the territory.

Continue the self-government of the civilized tribes.

Let them regulate their own land tenure.

LAW.

Enact suitable laws to protect life and property on reservations.

Make them flexible in detail.

Administer them through department orders approved by the president.

Promptly and rigidly enforce them.

Individualize the punishment of crime. Never hold the tribe liable for the crimes of its members.

Organize an efficient Indian police force on every reservation.

INDIAN DEPARTMENT.

Create a separate Indian department under a civilian secretary.

Grant plenary emergency powers to the president.

Have all agencies frequently inspected by appointees of the president, well paid and unconnected with the Indian department.

Carefully regulate the powers and duties of Indian agents.

Give them permanent position and liberal salaries. Keep them free from political influence. Let their subordinates be appointed by the department.

All questions of general policy and treatment to be settled by the department. No individual experiments by separate agents to be permitted.

Abolish all privileged tradeships. Absolutely destroy all traffic in liquors. Control the sale of arms and ammunition. In all else let there be free trade.

Let all military posts be maintained separate and apart from the Indian villages and preserve absolute non-intercourse between the soldiers and the Indians.

NO REMOVALS.

Remove no more tribes, except where the soil and climate require it, and the change is voluntary.

Civilize the Indians where they are.

EDUCATION.

Educate the entire reservation population. Teach the children in boarding manual labor schools on the reservations.

Make them farmers and graziers.

Give all the bands an abundance of cattle.

Teach them trades.

Instruct them in the laws of health.

Show them how to live.

Neutralize the influence of the medicine men.

Make work compulsory.

LANDS IN SEVERALTY.

On reservations divide lands in severalty as soon as Indians can farm them. Make them inalienable and non-taxable for a time. Sell the surplus lands for the benefit of the tribe.

Elsewhere grant government lands in severalty (on same terms) to all Indians who can cultivate them.

CITIZENSHIP.

Give citizenship to all self-supporting Indians who ask it.

Several persons left Pendleton for the Wood river country last week.

A Losing Joke.

A prominent physician of Pittsburgh said jokingly to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill health, and of his inability to cure her, "try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, as it cost him a good patient.—Harrisburg Patriot.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 4, 1882.

A MATTER OF POLICY AND MORALS.

Is it surprising that some people declare that "It is no sin to cheat the government?" That impersonal and irresponsible party called the government seldom keeps agreements that can possibly be evaded. It made a treaty with France, during the time of the consulate, agreeing to assume the claims of American citizens against France, and it has never paid those claims. It made a treaty with Great Britain by which it received a great sum of money with which to indemnify its own citizens for losses from Anglo-rebel cruisers; and it has never paid those losses. It received another large sum of money from Japan, playing the part of a highwayman's accomplice, and although often entreated and often rated, it has never indemnified its own naval officers, nor has it paid back the extorted money.

But the most flagrant instances of bad faith on the part of the government have been in connection with its treatment of the Indian tribes. The theory of our Indian policy has been about this: The Indian is an objectionable straggler, to be hustled out of the way and got rid of as soon as possible, and to be amused, meantime, by empty promises. Successive congresses, for a hundred years, have faithfully adhered to this general idea. Each tribe has been (after struggles more or less violent) put down upon a tract of land called a reservation, and told that this was to be their home "forever." Of course, there are other things which usually enter into the agreement made under such circumstances, such as the promise to pay the Indian annuities, furnish them with rations, etc. These minor promises are sometimes kept and sometimes no attempt is made to keep them. But the main part of the treaty—that which relates to the permanent location of the Indians—is never kept. It has never been kept since the foundation of the republic. It is contrary to our principles to keep any such promise. We may as well be candid in the matter. The man who argues that a treaty or agreement between the United States government and the Indian is as binding as a similar contract [illegible] as much ignorance and as little sense as the "sentimentalist." [illegible]

But we should take credit to ourselves for not breaking Indian treaties without a pretence of [illegible] them. For example, a tribe is fixed "forever" on a tract of land by solemn treaty. White settlers crowd around the [illegible] of the reservation, longing to [illegible] in. Murmurs of discontent are heard. [illegible] the Indians must be removed. A commission is sent to [illegible] alleged [illegible] of the alleged treaty. [illegible] a show of military force is necessary to hasten the so-called negotiations. There can be but one conclusion to this dismal and oft-repeated comedy. The Indians [illegible] away with a new treaty, which [illegible] certain to be torn into pieces like all its predecessors. He was a philosopher who told the irascible Frederick the Great that it was unsafe to disagree with a monarch who had such strong convictions and [illegible] as his majesty of Prussia. Sometimes during the farcical negotiations [illegible] of relinquishment there are reports that the Indians are sullen and rebellious. This never lasts long. The North American Indian, after a century or [illegible] experience, has learned how painful [illegible] it is to have a mind and will of his own.

And [illegible] after we have settled into the policy of [illegible] treaties and then substituting [illegible] for treaties, as [illegible] immorally [illegible] a philanthropic statesman asks [illegible] a new and radical departure. Gov. Hoyt, of Pennsylvania, has proposed a new form of policy in the treatment of the Indians which is contrary to the practice and usage of the United States government [illegible] Gov. Hoyt has prepared a platform of principles—printed elsewhere—which he has caused to be sent to the governors of all the states, asking them to [illegible] their several legislatures an indorsement [illegible] and a memorial [illegible] Gov. Hoyt's platform [illegible] shall never [illegible] It is not necessary [illegible] of faith and [illegible]

About [illegible] hundred thousand [illegible] congress [illegible] Congress [illegible] then calmly [illegible] treaties [illegible] Treaties with Indians are made to be broken. It is possible that there has been a treaty made with the Indians by the government of the United States which has been faithfully kept. But it is not probable. Every agreement of any importance has been broken so many times that one may well wonder why the farce of [illegible] is ever enacted. We hear a great deal in [illegible] and orations about the "national conscience." But the national [illegible] the [illegible] manifest. The Indian policy has been a mistake from the [illegible] Gov. Hoyt's plan is the best and most complete ever yet presented.

INCREASE OF IMMIGRATION.

The bureau of statistics has just issued its [illegible] March. Its figures, coupled with the current statement about the usual number of arrivals at New York to the middle of April, corroborate the general belief that we shall gain this year from abroad at least a million new citizens. For the past quarter, as compared with the corresponding quarter in 1881, the immigrants arrived monthly at all, save a few of the unimportant ports, have been as follows:

Months.	1882.	1881.	Numerical gain.	Gain per cent.
January	18,48[illegible]	13,134	5,355	40,772
February	28,247	15,075	13,172	87,377
March	65,23[illegible]	44,066	21,178	48,071
Totals	111,97[illegible]	72,266	39,705	54,944

If the same percentage of gains should be sustained for the remaining quarter of the present year, the aggregate number gained in calendar year 1882 over the number of immigrants in 1881 would be 395,621, and the total of permanent addition to our population in the twelve months would be 1,110,666. The arrival of immigrants at all United States ports, in three month periods, during the last three calendar years, are tabulated below:

Quarter ended	1881.	1880.	1879.
March 31	75,032	56,613	21,795
June 30	311,954	242,561	80,447
September 30	175,330	158,910	60,789
December 31	159,720	125,635	78,194
Totals	721,036	593,719	260,565

Here the very rapid increase of our foreign immigration is exhibited in a full and clear light. This and the next two months are the ones in which the inpouring tide is at its maximum. In July, therefore, we shall be able to calculate with considerable probability the number of immigrants likely to be received on our shores this year. Already a million seems to be a very fair estimate. They are coming too fast. The movement is too great to be natural and healthy. The great mass of the new comers may be industrious, thrifty and moral people, who in bettering their condition by coming here contribute to the growth and welfare of the country; but many are idlers, paupers, malcontents and criminals.

A few years ago the press of this country raised a protest against the practice of the authorities of the Grand Duchy of Hessen in exporting criminals to the United States. It was for a time discontinued and the agitation died out. Two weeks ago the subject was reopened by the Tageblatt, a Berlin paper, which editorially set forth a condition of affairs well worth attention from this side of the ocean. The suspension of criminal exportation from Hesse was only brief, and to-day, in certain middle German states, the inmates of district prisons, and even of penitentiaries, are often set free on the sole condition of their emigrating to America. The kingdom of Wurtemberg is cited as the worst of the lot, where convicts of the most dangerous class have recently been officially pardoned upon pledging themselves to cross the ocean. We presume the government furnishes a passage and an outfit. The Tageblatt thinks that Prussia has carefully avoided any indulgence of this kind, but that should not prevent the United States from remonstrating very energetically with the imperial government concerning the misdeeds of the minor states of the empire. Our cities are filling up with criminal and incendiary classes from the old world. There is need of regulation and restriction.

BRITISH REVENUE AND TRADE.

The annual reports of the revenue and trade of Great Britain deal in big figures. The fiscal year of the government ends with March, and the official statement of receipts of revenue during the year just closed as compared with the same period in 1881, thus foots up:

	1882.	1881.
Customs	$ 98,435,000	$ 95,020,000
Excise	136,200,000	126,500,000
Stamps	61,300,000	59,700,000
Land tax and house duty	13,625,000	13,700,000
Property and income tax	49,725,000	53,250,000
Postoffice	36,000,000	31,500,000
Telegraph service	8,150,000	8,000,000
Crown lands	1,900,000	1,930,000
Interest on advances	6,086,310	7,238,560
Miscellaneous	29,680,110	21,447,880
Totals	$420,111,420	$420,200,440

The amount of gold and bullion and gold and silver in the banks of England, Ireland and Scotland, and in the joint stock banks, with the note circulation of the United Kingdom is thus stated, Note circulation March 11, 1882:

Bank of England	$123,890,000
Private banks	8,006,100
Joint stock banks	8,250,005
Total in England	$140,147,095
Banks in Scotland	25,016,320
Banks in Ireland	34,447,800
Total paper circulation in Great Britain and Ireland	$200,211,215

The average stock of bullion held by the Bank of England in both departments during the month ending March 8, was $107,515,000. The gold and silver held by the Scotch and Irish banks on the 11th of March was $31,180,215, making a total of gold and silver held by all the banks of the kingdom of $138,695,215, against a total of paper money of $200,211,215. The legal tender paper of Great Britain is about $124,000,000, secured by a deposit of $107,500,000 in gold and silver.

The kingdom, with its population of about 34,000,000, manages by skillful arrangement of its revenue system to collect about $420,000,000 of national revenue. The taxation in Great Britain is purely for revenue purposes, and every dollar of tax produces a dollar of revenue, while in this country under our tariff something less than $1 of tax out of $8 levied and collected becomes revenue, the remainder of the tax being farmed out to corporations and other monopolies and by them taken to themselves.

The British tariff, from which is collected $96,000,000 a year, consists of the following brief list of articles taxed: Chicory, cocoa-husks, chocolate, coffee, dried fruits, spirits, tea, tobacco and wine. The duties on sugar have all been repealed, and those on tea greatly reduced within the last few years. The customs duties on the several kinds of spirits, and wines and tobacco yield $70,000,000 of the total $96,000,000 revenue collected through the custom house. Practically there are now but four articles taxed by the British tariff—tobacco, spirits, tea and wine. The five principal articles of British export and their values in 1881 were as follows:

Cotton manufactures	$370,000,000
Woolen and worsted manufactures	100,000,000
Iron and steel	140,000,000
Coal, etc.	41,500,000
Linen manufactures	46,000,000
Value of raw exports	$700,500,000

The value of the cotton manufactures of Great Britain exported exceeds $1,000,000 a day. British manufacturers pay no tax or duty on raw material which they import.

A crusade against gamblers was inaugurated in New York last week by the arrest of four prominent members of the fraternity in that city, against whom the district attorney holds indictments. Bail was fixed at $5000 in each case, and was furnished by but one. As in Chicago, the officials of New York were spurred to action by a merchant whose cashier had robbed him and lost his stealings in gambling houses. In neither place did a mere election to execute the laws seem to carry with it a duty to enforce them, as well as to draw a salary.

Bob Ingersoll last Sunday, in New York, went for Mr. Talmage in a three-hour lecture. Bob rehashed all that he has hitherto said upon his favorite hobby, and then proceeded to slice up Mr. Talmage, whom he described as a kind of "pious pantaloon." This is not quite so severe as the late Dr. Porteous' description of the Brooklyn doctor of divinity, whom he designated as "the clown of the tabernacle, where they had a high-falutin' in one corner and a bugle in the other."

Mayor Thompson put an end last night to all disputes regarding his right to the mayoralty by notifying the council that he would tender his resignation at the next meeting, to take effect June 1st. This will occasion a mayoralty election at the time of the general election on the 5th of June. Mr. Thompson gave no intimation as to whether or not he would be a candidate for re-election.

When the Illinois senate convened last month Senator DeLand, a republican, presented a resolution fixing the pay of the chaplain at $3 per day. Mr. Merritt, in behalf of the democrats, moved to increase the amount to $5 per day, which was carried. The democrats seem to have a better estimate of the value of prayer.

The board of trade to-night will ask by resolution for an immediate appropriation of $25,000 for scraping the channel forming through the middle sands of the Columbia river. That judicious scraping will assist nature, experiments two years ago proved.

General Horace Maynard, who died at Nashville yesterday, has long been a prominent figure in Tennessee politics and in national affairs. His death is a loss to his party and his state.

The "Greasers" have given our troops a lesson in Indian fighting which they may follow with advantage.

GOOD FOR SORE EYES.
THIS IS TO CERTIFY THAT IN JUNE, 1881, I had acute inflammation in my eyes, and in spite of all the surgical aid I received in Oregon my eyes continued to get worse, until at length I became helplessly blind. In August I went to San Francisco and was under the treatment of two oculists of considerable repute. One was a professor of diseases of the eye, and I remained under his care one month, but continuing to get worse, I changed to another so-called specialist, to find I was only jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire. I next consulted Dr. Pardee, 621 Clay street, San Francisco. His treatment relieved me from the very first, and I continued to improve day by day, until I could see to read as well as any one. I found his treatment both simple and mild, different from any and all other treatments I had received. My residence is in Astoria, Oregon. I insert this card at my own expense out of pure gratitude to Dr. Pardee and without his knowledge to let any similarly afflicted know where to go to get their eyes cured, as I have been through the mill and speak from a sad experience. m4d6w HENRY HARRISON.

THURSDAY MORNING, MAY 4, 1882.

CITY NEWS.

HORSE KILLED BY A BLOW.—Yesterday afternoon John Rines, proprietor of the wood yard at the foot of Oak street, killed a horse belonging to him under the following circumstances: The animal had been spoiled as a colt and was in the habit of backing. While hitched with a mate to a loaded wagon on the dock, he refused to pull after repeated lashings with the whip, but struggled by jumping and kicking. Rines picked up a fir stick, eight feet long, one inch thick and about one and a half inches wide, and struck the horse just back of the ears. After trembling for a brief space the horse fell and soon expired. Rines expresses the opinion that the animal ruptured a blood vessel in his previous struggles and this caused death. If death had resulted from the blow, the horse, he thinks, would have fallen instantly. The animal was a fine 8-year old and valued at $200. A witness to the affair said to an OREGONIAN reporter that Rines and his partner whipped the animal unmercifully, and then beat him with a stick of wood. A bystander expostulated, and suggested that the horse be unhitched, when Rines answered that he would do with his horse as he pleased. The bystander then threatened to prosecute, to which Rines replied, "Go ahead, I'd just as lief pay $10 fine as not." Our informant further stated that the horse was undoubtedly killed by the blow on the head.

JAMES WELSH IN HONOLULU.—Officer James Barry yesterday received a letter from Michael Hogan in San Francisco, who was justice of the peace in this city in 1878, saying that he had just met a friend who arrived on the last steamer from Honolulu. Hogan's informant said that James Welsh, who is thought to have been murdered, was working at his trade in Honolulu when he left there. The letter did not state whether Welsh knew of the hubbub that has been raised about his disappearance, but the fact of Hogan not mentioning it, shows that he likely does not. The letter is a corroboration of the dispatch published in THE OREGONIAN not long since, and it is altogether probable that Welsh is in Honolulu. Chief of Police Lappeus has already written to the authorities at that place, and in a short time will know to a certainty about it.

BUT THERE'S NO LAW TO PUNISH HIM.—A vicious two legged brute whose name unfortunately our reporter who saw the occurrence could not get, was engaged for ten minutes yesterday afternoon at the corner of Fourth and Yamhill, in beating a young horse. What he wanted the horse to do, he did not know; neither did the horse. So the patient brute stood still, while the savage brute beat him over the head first with the lash, then with the butt of a wagon whip. After the rage of the savage had subsided, he ceased his cruelty and the horse, which should have kicked out his master's brains, allowed himself to be driven away.

TO SCRAPE THE BAR.—The board of trade will hold a special meeting to-night, the object being to pass a resolution asking the government for an immediate appropriation of $15,000 for improvement of the Columbia river bar. This request will be seconded by Capt. Chas. F. Powell, U. S. engineer in charge of this department. Recent surveys show that a channel is forming directly through the middle sands and if nature is assisted the summer flood in the Columbia will in all probability cut a channel similar to that of 1841—the safest and deepest since the first white settlement.

NEW BANKING FIRM.—Mr. H. W. Fairweather, superintendent of the Pend d'Oreille division of the Northern Pacific, and Mr. Geo. S Brooke, for many years in the employ of the O. S. N. and O. R. & N. Companies have formed a partnership in the banking and collection business at Sprague, W. T. Both gentlemen stand high in the estimation of this community, and are possessed of business ability which is certain to win success.

GOING THE ROUNDS.—The trick of palming off a copper one cent piece for a two and a half gold piece, seems to be in vogue, and from all accounts works admirably. Jake Williams, who no doubt got his "pointer" from what he saw in the newspapers, practiced it successfully upon two parties yesterday. Wm. O'Reagan said he was victimized, and upon his complaint Williams was arrested and locked in the city jail.

CASE DISMISSED.—The grand jury yesterday found a true bill against Frank C. White, who robbed the firm of J. K. Gill & Co. of considerable money. After the indictment had been presented, District Attorney Caples petitioned the court to dismiss the case, promising that if his petition was granted the defendant would leave the state. The motion was allowed and the prisoner released.

REDUCED EXCURSION RATES.—The pamphlet entitled "Summer Saunterings," which the O. R. & N. Co. are about to issue for the benefit of tourists and pleasure-seekers, in addition to its neat typography and entertaining matter is to contain a list of excursion fares, considerably less than the established rates, to all points of interest in Oregon, Washington, Puget Sound and Alaska.

VIOLATING DEBRIS ORDINANCE.—Workmen were yesterday engaged in throwing old, water-soaked and heavy timbers from the new dock at the foot of Oak street, into the river. This violation of the ordinance is punishable with a very heavy penalty, the law should be enforced at least once to teach a considerable number of careless or ignorant persons that it is not a dead letter.

THE MAYOR WILL RESIGN.

Mayor Thompson at this point of the proceedings arose and addressed the council. He said that it was well known to all the members that the city election last June resulted in no choice for mayor, and that under the law he held over. There was a difference of opinion as to whether he held over for three years, or only until the election next month. On this point he had sought advice from the best legal authorities, but they were as much at loss for definite advice as the general public. Therefore, to avoid any complication likely to arise out of the matter, he announced that he would resign the office of mayor at the next regular meeting, the resignation to take effect the first Monday in July. This would give the council an opportunity to call an election for mayor next month.

Councilman Gerdes thereupon offered the following resolution:

Whereas, At the city election held on June 20, 1881, Joseph Simon and D. P. Thompson were rival candidates for the office as mayor of the city of Portland, and

Whereas, After a contest between said parties for such office, had before this council, it was determined by resolution adopted on the 3d day of August, 1881, as follows:

Resolved, That the decision of this council is that neither D. P. Thompson nor Joseph Simon was elected mayor of this city at said election, and that the hold-over mayor, D. P. Thompson, continue in office till his successor is duly elected and qualified as provided by law.

AND WHEREAS, It is essential that this council should know as early as practicable if an election for the office of mayor should be called for and held on the 3d Monday in June, 1882; therefore be it

Resolved, That the city attorney be and he is directed to furnish the council at the next meeting thereof his opinion in writing as to whether or not, under the provisions of the city charter, an election for the office of mayor of the city of Portland should be held on the 3d Monday in June, 1882.

Mayor Thompson said that whatever might be the opinion of the city attorney, he would resign at the next meeting.

After some discussion the resolution was passed. The council then adjourned.

THE MINSTRELS.

A long, aching void has been filled. That which Portland amusement lovers for three years have watched, waited and paid for, has been received, and the supply was fully equal to the demand. The Standard Minstrels, who opened last night at New Market theater to a packed house—gallery, parquette and dress circle—fulfilled general expectation and managerial promises. There were just fourteen in the semi-circle when the curtain rose and not a stick in the lot. Four capital comedians—Reed, Mack, Haverly and Ryman; four good voices for ballad singing and six musicians who knew how to play. The first part could scarcely have been better. All the jokes were, for a wonder, fresh and clean, and they were sent out with admirable crispness. The ditties of Haverly, Mack and Reed set the gallery wild, and the ballads of Lawless, Bishop and Dixon were of the old-fashioned, enjoyable sort, too much neglected nowadays by burnt cork organizations in their eagerness to present alleged novelties. Gov. Add Ryman's stump speech was excellent, because in addition to being a good attempt at oratory, it had the merit of a dozen or more hits, and was not the customary, tiresome harangue. Better features than Reed's budget of nonsense and Haverly and Mack's breakneck sketches would be hard to imagine.

"Muldoon's Picnic" is a succession of very comical situations, something after the "Fun on the Bristol" style, in which Reed and Mack have scope for displaying fair character acting and the remainder of the company for helping them to keep an audience in continual roars for an hour.

Mr. Freeth, the basso of the quartette, was so hoarse as not to be able to speak above a whisper; hence his absence. The programme will be repeated to-night; to-morrow evening an entire change.

NEWS NOTES FROM CHAMPOEG.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

CHAMPOEG, May 2.

Our Sunday school will give their concert in four weeks in Eberhard's warehouse.

Rev Mr. McIntire is lying dangerously ill at the residence of Robert Ady, near town.

Mr. Levi Leland delivered three lectures on temperance here last week with telling effect.

Can't somebody summon up courage and start a butcher shop at this place? Plenty of room for a good shop, and great need for one, as we have to look to Hubbard station for supplies, nine miles away.

Farm hands have been very scarce all spring, and even at this date a good many more are wanted in this neighborhood. If anybody knows any hands wanting work (not gentlemen of leisure), send them up here.

The good templars number some 70 members, the cream of the country, and they will give their first picnic May 13th, on their new ground which has been lately fitted up. They are looking forward for a grand celebration, July 4th, next.

JONATHAN MILLS GRADUAL REDUCTION PROCESS.

[illegible]

OVER 500 MACHINES IN USE.

The Degerminator Splits the Wheat and removes the germ and seam impurities perfectly. These Reduction Machines granulate the wheat, without cutting or abrading the bran. Guaranteed to make rounder and larger middlings and a greater percentage; also STRONGER and WHITER FLOUR than any other system in use.

A LIBERAL OFFER TO MILLERS.—Knowing the superiority of the Jonathan Mills Degerminator and Reduction Machines for reducing wheat, we submit the following liberal proposition:

We will set aside the Corrugated Rolls and put our machines in their place at our expense, and without making any other changes, we will guarantee Better Results than are now obtained, to this: that from the same quantity and quality of wheat now used per barrel, we will guarantee a larger percentage of Patent Flour of equal quality to that now made; a less percentage of low grade flour, and a Bakers' Flour superior in color and quality to, and worth more money than, the Bakers' Flour now made in the same mills. If we fail to accomplish Better Results as above, we will take out our machines and replace the Rolls, all at our own expense, and, in addition, will forfeit to the miller a cash bonus of $1000 to $10,000, according to the capacity of the mill.

In practical operation at City of Salem Co's Capitol Mills, Salem, Or.

Who Manufacture Four Grades of Flour from our Machines.

A TEST CROWNED BY VICTORY OVER THE ROLLER SYSTEM.

In January, 1880, McDow & Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, bought the Jonathan Mills Reduction Machines and fitted up their "National Mills" therewith, continuing to use these machines for a year and a half. In August last, 1881, they were asked to set out the Reduction Machines and put in the Corrugated Roller Mills, subject to acceptance after trial, and had their mills re-arranged, at considerable expense, by practical men skilled in the art of roller milling, aided and backed by all the talent and experience of the manufacturers of Roller Mills. After five months' trial McDow & Co. have thrown out the Corrugated Rolls and put the Jonathan Mills Reduction Machines back into their mill, where they are now in use, because the work of the Jonathan Mills Reduction Machines so far excelled that done by the Rolls.

ON TRIAL WITHOUT EXPENSE to the Miller. In any mill where Corrugated Rolls are used for reducing wheat, we will put in our machines in place of the Rolls, furnish all shafting, pulleys, etc., at our own expense, and let the miller run them on trial for 60 days. If the miller decides to keep them we will charge him the regular price and the actual cost of making the change. If he prefers to keep the Rolls we will take out the machines and replace the Rolls as before, thus insuring the miller a satisfactory trial in his own mill, and without any expense. DOROTHY DOLEFUL.

BY WILLIAM O. EATON.

It sometimes seems odd—and yet it isn't that some people in this world are so extravagantly fond of the doleful feast upon all themes which harrow up the soul and delight in adding to the darkness of a life already dark enough.

A morbidly bilious temperament is the cause, and they who have a disposition so affected, naturally find relief by comparing their ills with those of others.

Widow Dorothy Doleful had lost three husbands and nine sons upon the remorseless sea. She married in a seafaring community, and the nautical inclinations of her husbands and children had decked her head twelve times with a black bonnet and the weed of mourning.

But the Widow Doleful, though she had a humane heart, had a tough one, in some respects. Her grief was like that of many other widows. With a charming system, it duly observed the outward ceremonies proscribed by the world, but it did not so penetrate her soul as to make her heart break, or prevent her from looking about for another husband.

She was born with a passionate fondness for the gloomy side of life, and the atmosphere of sorrow was wholesome to her. She thrived under affliction like an ivy vine in the shade, and related dismal tales with a deep feeling of satisfaction. After her dozenth bereavement, she one day took herself to a little politic thinking, and said the widow to herself as she smoothed the wrinkles of her black silk gown.

"This here won't do at all. It won't do for me to marry any more sailors. They are all the time dying at sea, and their sons keep naturally doing the same likewise—just as the young ducks follow the old ones into the water, as soon as they break shell. What's bred in the bone will never come out of the flesh. My next husband shall get his living on land, and if I have my choice, he shall hate water like a dog that has the hydrophobia. Particularly as I am getting old now and can't afford to lose many more dear husbands; husbands ain't so plenty to get after we're forty-five!"

So the widow cheered up on the strength of her new resolution, and having disposed of her effects in her native town on the seaboard, moved, [illegible] alone, to another town in an inland state.

It was fortunate for the widow that she moved where she did, as the town boasted of two railroads and a canal, and a river, and a lake, were not many miles off, so that the neighborhood was likely to have plenty of fresh bad news of railroad accidents, steamboat disasters and canal-boatmen rows, independent of the interesting chapters of horrors brought by the newspapers from all quarters of the world and parts adjacent.

Widow Dorothy Doleful had not long settled herself down in the town of Woeberry before she had made the acquaintance of nearly every widow in the place.

Widowhood has a great attractive power and a great fund of interesting knowledge, including that of a woman's heart, might be furnished to the world, could the interviews of weed-sick widows be all faithfully related. Practical experience is a great thing in all trades, and sorrow makes folks wise.

Our Widow Doleful having had the advantage of all the other widows in having lost so many husbands, became a center of attraction to them, and consequently there was hardly anything in the female way, but black, that ever visited her house.

Widows, widows, widows, kept pouring and pouring in, and had it not been that their cheerful faces belied their sad habiliments, the very walls would have been moved to sympathy, echoed with sighs and streamed with tears.

Though this pen is well acquainted with all that those widows said, in their various interviews with the Widow Dorothy Doleful it would refuse the task were an attempt made to wield it in the betrayal of confidence. It never does such things. It is, however, willing for a consideration to give what the widow said to some of her sister widows on one occasion, in order to convey an idea of her style of taste, and thought, and talk.

On the occasion referred to, she had received two letters, black sealed, from home, and was just preparing to break them open, and have a rich treat, when three or four other mourners came trotting in.

After the conventional salutes, and the visitors had each gladly accepted the invitation "to take their bonnets off," Mrs. Doleful opened her soul as follows:

"Such a dreadful accident as I've just read in the paper! A steamboat's busted on the lake and about sixty people blown sky high! Oh, dear! Them steamboats is always busting. I shouldn't wonder if we all had some relations or friends on board, and perhaps they've blowed up too! It would be some satisfaction to know it, so as to set our minds to rest; but the names haven't come yet—poor souls!"

"The papers will tell to-morrow," said one.

"Some of 'em I suppose," continued the widow. "But how some of 'em are so dry; they never have half of the accidents that happens. There is some papers, however, that has a great many every time. I do take great delight in some of the spirited papers that always has plenty of murders, accidents, robberies, suicides and particularly the marine disasters. O, how it blowed last night! Whenever I hear it blow in the night, I always think of my poor, dear, three husbands."

With great effort she managed to heave a sigh, and one little tear crept out of her eye, which, notwithstanding, looked as cheerful as ever, and not a sign of anguish exhibited itself in her face at all. She continued, with renewed animation:

"I've just got two letters from home. Both sealed with black, which shows that somebody's dead. O, dear! I s'pose I must read 'em. I hardly dare to open 'em, though. O, dear! it seems as if everybody was dying. I shouldn't wonder if one was Polly Crocker. It is a wonder she hadn't died long ago, for the poor thing was always ailing. She tried all the patent medicines, for she had most everything, but there's no telling what was the matter with her, for she never got cured. How sickly some people be. Well, I suppose I must read my letters."

With this she broke one seal, but very reluctantly, as if she [illegible] to abbreviate the pleasure of anticipation.

"I hope the news won't overcome you," said one of the widows, winking to the others, who were laughing behind gayly embroidered handkerchiefs. "Can you bear bad news well?"

"Oh, no! I'm a shocking bad hand at that. Bad news always goes to my stomach. Ever since my last husband died I've been a shocking poor hand to bear bad news. Perhaps it is the climate that makes it. The climate is very poor, and growing worse and worse every day. Once I could stand the east wind, but now I can't stand any wind at all. Sometimes it seems to me as if there was cholera or yellow fever or sickness of some kind in all the air in this country, and then I think perhaps it will kill off al. the white folks just as it used to the poor red injuns. That's what old Mr. Foresight used to think. Oh, dear! He's dead, too. He married Betsy Pall. She died within a year, and he had to marry Mrs. Sally Snapper to get rid of his grief and care of the child. He hadn't been dead more'n a week, afore she married—let me see; who did Sally—who did Mrs.—who did she marry? But Lord! I forgot my letters! I must read them! Excuse me a bit."

With a very faint "O, dear!" she now read the two missives, while the other widows engaged in lively chat upon man and matrimony, with many significant nods and winks and giggles, general and particular, from which they were finally diverted by another "O, dear!" from Mrs. Doleful.

"Any very bad news?" asked they.

"Not as bad as I expected," sighed she, with a look of disappointment.

"Any relation died?"

"Only a little one—Mrs. Bixby's baby—a cousin of mine—whooping cough, and only four months old. The letter is very affecting, but then I never saw the child. I think Mrs. Bixby's a little teched in the head, or else what did she hurry up my feelings by black-sealing a letter for only a little baby for?"

This nice distinction, and the lachrymose look of chagrin which accompanied it, set all the other widows in a titter.

The Widow Doleful looked grave at first, but soon a sort of mouldy smile stole across her features, like a doubtful cat over a strange shed.

"I don't wonder you smile at such a piece of business myself," she said. "I know she must be tetched. But this here," placing her hand upon the other letter, with a look of respect, "is of some importance. It says that old Mrs. Timwocks is dead—Mrs. Tamson Timwocks, aged ninety. It says:

"'I now take my pen in hand this time to inform you that old Mrs. Tamson Timwocks is no more. Methinks I hear you say, "What on earth did she die of?" seeing that she lived so long, some folks thought she couldn't die. She died of a bucket of whitewash, which it fell upon her head by accident from an Irishman, who was whitewashing the corn barn. It is a pity—but what can you expect from foreigners? Poor Mrs. Timwocks! No more. Adieu.

'PRUDENCE ROGERS.'"

"Poor old critter," continued Mrs. Doleful. "But I don't care much on account of her, seeing she was old, and was no relation, and she had no friends. Besides, she must have been pretty well tired out. Prudence Rodgers ain't long for this world, herself. She's sickly and worn out, though she's only twenty. Some folks wear out very easily! I wonder what she'd ha' done if she'd been through what I have? Three husbands and nine sons, and not a one alive! Oh, dear. Oh, deary dear. It is past all account what I suffer sometimes. There's one thing I've forgotten to ask," she suddenly exclaimed, with extraordinary self-control, subduing her deep sorrow: "is the new minister, Rev. Mr. Pinkman, married or not?"

The pen refuses to disclose anything farther; save that all the widows were heard to laugh loudly shortly after, and that the Widow Doleful brightened up; from which it may be inferred that Mr. Pinkman "was in the market."

A RECORD FOR RESIGNING.

Prevalent Belief in Atlanta, Ga., that Senator Brown will soon Resign His Seat.

Special dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.

ATLANTA, GA., April 18.—A correspondent of the Constitution, now traveling with Senator Brown in a special car through the lower portion of Georgia, where the senator is in search of health, after writing a most discouraging account of the condition of the Georgia senator, finishes his letter in the following manner:

"Did you know," said Senator Brown wearily after a severe fit of coughing, as we swept through the pine borders, "that I have a fine record for resigning. I resigned every political office I ever held except state senator. I resigned the first office I was elected to—that of constable. I resigned the superior court judgeship. I resigned the governorship—this latter under peculiar circumstances. At the close of the war, while I was in prison, Judge Johnson was made provisional governor and took charge of affairs. When I came home I found him in power. I was very sick for some weeks. As soon as I recovered I wrote out my resignation as governor and had it published. I stated to the people that, as I was prevented by circumstances over which I had no control from administering the trust they had confided in me, I felt it to be my duty to resign it back into their hands. I was arrested for writing this resignation by Gen. Wilson, who thought it was contempt of the federal authority. Yes," he continued, reflectively, "I've written several resignations of office."

The above creates more than ordinary comment here, owing to the fact that the Constitution is the reputed organ of Senator Brown, and that one of the staff correspondents of that paper was sent with him to write whatever the senator wished published. Senator Brown for years past has [illegible] an attack of bronchial [illegible] with. The fact that [illegible] unmistakable [illegible] of consumption [illegible] from his mouth, and his form [illegible] wasting away gradually, causes much feeling of uneasiness for him. The popular belief created by the remarks of the Georgia senator is that he will soon be forced to resign his seat in the senate for the reason alluded to. Before leaving Atlanta on his trip to South Georgia he was confined to an easy chair, and was unable to transact business. Rumor is quite prevalent on the streets to-night that at an early day Senator Brown will resign his seat in the senate, and that Gen. John B. Gordon will be appointed to fill the vacancy. Two years ago this month Gordon resigned his seat in the senate and Brown was appointed by Gov. Colquitt as his successor. Senator Brown is now filling the unexpired term of ex-Senator Gordon, having been elected to that position by the last legislature. What there is in the rumor I do not know, but one thing is certain, that it is general talk on the streets and in the hotel rotundas, and the remarks of the senator are considered the forerunner of the predicted event.

WANTED.

Issues for Political Campaigns in the East.

Special to Cincinnati Commercial.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—Many members of congress, not from Ohio alone, but from many western and southern states, are looking with great interest toward the action of their state legislatures as bearing not upon the question of redistricting alone, but, as in the case of Ohio, for the creation of campaign issues. This is essentially the case among Ohio members. "There is so little doing in congress out of which to make any campaign issues," said a prominent member from northwestern Ohio to-day, "that local measures in the next campaign are going to be more prominent than ever, and especially since the recent action of the local legislature. There is no subject before congress upon which party lines are anything like sharply drawn. The Chinese bill probably comes nearer to being a political question than anything else, and that can scarcely be called such either. Heretofore we have been able to do something for the administration, but the people of Ohio look upon this administration as a make-shift, and since the nomination of Conkling to be a justice of the supreme court they do not care much how it succeeds. Arthur is doing nothing, and congress is doing nothing—that is, nothing that the people are interested in. The trouble with Arthur seems to be that which would beset the clerk in any large establishment who is suddenly called to the front by the death of the head of the firm. Questions are constantly arising with which he is entirely unfamiliar, and, instead of being promptly disposed of, they remain untouched upon his table. Arthur was never anything more than a distributing clerk for Conkling and Platt in New York, and when it comes to distributing the offices now at his disposal he only seems able to follow out the methods they taught him. He has done nothing in Ohio yet merely because he does not know how things are going to shape themselves.

"Judge Taft is the only man in Ohio whom Arthur seems to know, and he is consulted, when consultation is necessary, more than Senator Sherman is. The fact is that the only senators who are consulted at all are Don Cameron, Jones, of Nevada, and John Logan. Congressmen are granted a voice in the distribution of local offices, but beyond that neither members nor senators are taken into the president's councils. The appointment of Worthington to be collector of the port of Boston in the face of the expressed preference of both senators for Beard is a striking example of this kind of patronage. I met a gentleman, not long ago, from New York city who has an exceptionally large acquaintance with people east and west, both in and out of politics, and he says just as I do, that there is no popularity for the administration among the people anywhere. My own correspondence and that of every member of the delegation shows the same thing. The administration is built up of officeholders alone, and the people do not care a snap for it. In New York, politics are so managed that the officeholders—that is, the machine men—are able to do a great deal for the pap-giving power. There every fellow comes up and takes his soup."

SHIP-CHANDLER.

He will have Small Cabinet Meetings of his Own.

Dispatch to the Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 18.—The new secretary of the navy, Mr. Chandler, has decided to return to the system of Secretary Thompson, and will, at stated times, have meetings of the heads of bureaus to confer as to the requirements of the various divisions of the department. The first meeting was held to-day, and the members present spoke of it as very interesting and important. The idea is a very popular one in the department, as the officers think it makes the secretary better acquainted with his work and more interested in it. It was laid aside under Secretary Goff, in his brief administration and was not revived by Secretary Hunt. Now that Secretary Hunt is gone, the officers complain that he showed a lack of interest in the everyday work of the department, and neglected the advice of various responsible heads of bureaus, while he took his cue largely from the suggestions of Admiral Porter. It is reported of Secretary Thompson that he continued the practice of holding these minor cabinet meetings until one day it was discovered that the secretary stood alone in indorsing a certain plan for a general reorganization of the navy yards of the country, in consequence of which he showed some heat, and there was never another "cabinet meeting" called under his administration. At that time he presented a formidable written plan for a reorganization of the yards, which it has since been learned was prepared by a certain prominent officer, and the plan met with the heartiest disapproval of the chief of the bureau of yards and docks and of all the other bureau chiefs who were present at Mr. Thompson's "cabinet meeting."

England may have her own Row.

The Washington correspondent of the Mail and Express says: There is nothing talked of to-day in diplomatic circles beyond what is [illegible] regarded as Gladstone's back-down, representing both the constitutional and individual government of Great Britain. The release of Parnell and [illegible] is regarded at the state department and among the legations as pointing to home rule in Ireland, especially since Forster has resigned. At the state department they say our government takes no interest whatever in Great Britain's affairs, except to express the hope that the British government will succeed in doing some wise things. They say it is no business of ours what England does, and that neither suggestion nor request upon any incident of this present affair will come from the United States.

GUITEAU'S MAIL.

Sample Letters from the Idiots who Solicit His Autograph.

An inspection of Guiteau's correspondence, says "Gath," makes me doubt whether an autograph collector is not a very dubious sort of person, and whether there is not some responsibility attached to gratifying him. I will give instances of this from that part of Guiteau's book called "The Removal." One man from Belchertown, Mass., writes:

"HON. CHARLES GUITEAU: Realizing the fact that the name Charles Guiteau will stand as one of the great names in American history, I should consider it an honor to be the possessor of his autograph."

Another lecturer writes from San Francisco:

"DEAR SIR: I take this method of offering you my sympathy, and desire to extend to you any courtesy that I can. The people of San Francisco are with you, and desire to see you recompensed. I beg you most humbly to send me as a memento of a gift at least your autograph."

Another, from Buffalo, writes:

"I have watched the trial ever since it commenced, and have come to the conclusion that there is not another man in America that could fill your boots. I want your handwriting to put in my collection, as I have letters from the following great men: John Wesley, duke of Wellington, Gen. O'Connel and Adam Clark."

From Kansas a boy writes:

"DEAR SIR: Being a poor boy, and knowing your kind and benevolent disposition, I beg of you to send me your photograph, and I promise you that this western country will hear of your good deeds; yes, and it will help to bring to light your real character. I know, though you be Guiteau the Great, you will ever be generous and not forget the poor. The reason I want your photo is to remember the greatest of Americans, and to let the people here see your good face."

A Boston clergyman writes:

"I have long admired you for your honesty of purpose and your true Christian character. I am an earnest believer in your innocence—that is, that you were not responsible for the shot that killed President Garfield. I wish that I could have your autograph, that it might be handed down to my children and my children's children."

A New York autograph beggar says:

"Will you kindly grant me the favor of possessing your autograph to add to those of other illustrious men? I have been a close observer of your struggle with Porter, and think your final success is beyond all question; and, with profound respect for the manly course you have pursued, I remain, etc."

An alleged widow in Illinois, probably some museum stipendiary, writes:

"Being a widow left with much property, I would willingly help you. There surely could be no better way to spend a thousand or two than to help a fellow creature condemned by man, but sustained by divinity. Please send me a lock of your hair as a memento of one who was brave enough to sacrifice his life for his beloved party."

From Ohio a ragamuffin writes to "Hon. Charles Guiteau," and puts it into poetry:

> I am only a maid of Ohio's parts,
> And you are king of the stalwarts;
> But you will be so kind in my behalf
> As to favor me with your autograph.

But the most ingenious, unscrupulous, slimy personage is a man—or it is barely possible is a woman—writing to Guiteau under the color of being in love with him, being rich, surrounded with elegance, etc., and all the while drawing autographs and letters from him. He, or she, began to write last December, and wrote at great length, inserting French phrases, descriptions of flowers and other stuff shrewdly adapted to affect Guiteau's credulity. He no doubt believes in all these letters, and if he has not suspected the writers of them to be thieves, decoying his autograph from him, he has profited by their suggestions, and his autographs have yielded him hundreds of dollars. This party wrote a letter of thousands of words, closing with: "Favor me with at least so much of an acknowledgement of the receipt of this as will insure me your autograph. If you will inclose half a dozen more that I may distribute among your most ardent friends, they will be immensely esteemed; and now, au revoir, may God protect and deliver you is the sincere prayer of your stranger friend."

The next letter gives Guiteau glimpses of the pseudo family life of his elegant lady admirer; talks about pa and ma, and after meandering about comes to the point, saying: "Knowing how busy you must be at the present time, I inclose an envelope already subscribed and stamped in which you can, with little loss of time, inclose your autograph, or, still better, such reply as your feelings may dictate."

The next letter refers to Guiteau's answer having come promptly to hand, and says: "It will be esteemed and preserved as long as I live, and I doubt not for many generations, when we are no more, as a most interesting and solemn souvenir of the most important drama in the history of the republic, and of yourself, the principal actor, and now central figure. I do not prize it, as a gentleman friend was rude enough last evening to intimate, as a memento of the political annihilation of President Garfield. I prize it because I believe, or rather know, that you will either be acquitted and come forth a free man, whose claims upon his party and country will then be recognized, or you will fall a victim to an unjust administration of the law; and in either case I shall prize your letters as the most precious souvenirs that I could possess. The four autographs you were kind enough to enclose were all begged away by lady friends, who, like myself, sympathize deeply with you. Although I intended to preserve one for my album, I could not, in face of my good fortune in having your letter, be so selfish. Your request me to send you my photograph. I will endeavor to send one with this epistle, but if I do not I will send one in a day or two."

This party continues to delude Guiteau with an idea that he is going to have her photograph; though the same, if presented, would probably show some old furniture-dealer who had concluded that the autographs of distinguished men and criminals was the cheapest stock he could buy and the dearest he could sell.

A Short Trans-Atlantic Line.

New York Times.

There is now under consideration by a committee of the Dominion legislature a bill authorizing the establishment of a joint stock enterprise by which it is proposed to shorten the present ocean passage between London and the leading cities of America by three days. The scheme differs materially from the one recently broached by New York capitalists, although, as in the latter project, the parties interested in the new undertaking are all Americans. The corporation is to be called a "short line company," and it seeks to secure permission to build a good deal of railway, as a basis of its operations. The proposal is to build a line from Cape North to Cape Breton in Nova Scotia, and thence to the Straits of Canso. Here connection will be established with the Halifax and Cape Breton railway, which is already constructed to New Glasgow. From the latter point a road is to be built to Oxford to meet the intercolonial railway which runs to St. John. A bridge is then to be put up over the St. John river, which will open the way to communication with the different rail routes at present built to New York, Montreal, Chicago, and other cities. So far as the shortening of the water route across the ocean is concerned, the proposition of the projected company is to put on a line of fast steamers to cross the Irish channel, and then to traverse the ocean from Galway to Newfoundland, and lastly to cross the mouth of the St. Lawrence gulf from Cape Ray to Cape North. Here the railway facilities will be called into requisition, and passengers may secure rapid transit to any point they may desire to reach. By the above outlined system of combined water and rail route the projectors of this latest scheme of rapid travel claim they can gain three days of time which they undertake to save. The experiment will be watched with interest everywhere, as its successful accomplishment will be of the greatest value to business men on both sides of the water.

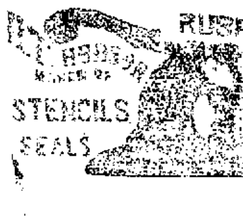
Severe on Forbes.

Denver Tribune.

Archibald Forbes, the English war correspondent, has written up his experiences as a lecturer for the Century Magazine. He has not created very much of a furore in this country. He did some very good work in this capacity as a reporter, but probably no better work than is being done every day by the newspaper reporters on the American press. He is not entitled to half the credit which belongs to the average police reporter who evolves three columns of sensational rot from his true inwardness every day, gets licked by indignant subscribers and receives only eleven dollars a week for the suffering he inflicts upon others and has inflicted upon himself.

Advertising Cheats.

It has become so common to write the beginning of an elegant, interesting article and then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such cheats and simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain honest terms as possible, to induce people to give them one trial, as no one who knows their value will ever use anything else.—[illegible]



PROSTRATE PERU.

England and Chili Preparing to Rule the Whole West Coast.

From a Regular Correspondent.

LIMA, March 24.—For the third or fourth time we are gravely assured that the ex-dictator of Peru, Don Nicolas de Pierola, leaves his country by this steamer, bound for Panama and Paris. He is accompanied by his family, and we are informed that his stay abroad is indefinite. If this story is true I would not vouch for it until the steamer is under way. Peru may be congratulated on [illegible] of [illegible] from her shores. General Hurlbut has done this country a great service by breaking down Pierola's hold on power. Pierola's influence is still very great among those who, if the occasion [illegible], would [illegible] the continuance [illegible] under the pretense of political passion, rob, outrage and destroy without mercy or compunction. This class has been impatiently awaiting some action on the part of the exdictator, and, as the Herald was informed, an attempt was made three weeks ago by the Pierola partisans to foist their leader into power by establishing a national or conglomerate party, of which he was to be the Deus ex machina. But the seed fell on unwilling ground; those who have property to lose united against the dangerous advances of the Pierolistas and so effectually counterblasted their schemes, that the journey of the fallen chief was resolved upon, after having made public a manifesto, declaring that the exdictator's adherents had determined to withdraw from all participation in public affairs. But the ball was set in motion, and a few days afterwards another appeal to the people appeared, signed by persons belonging to what is known as the military party, asserting that General Mariano I. Prado, now in New York, is the legal president of the republic, and that during his absence the first vice president, General Luis La Puerta, should be called to the supreme power. But it is understood that General La Puerta, who is a man of sense and character, declined to accept the invitation, more especially as his term of office and that of General Prado have both expired. So in reality we only have remaining the civil or constitutional party presided over by Garcia Calderon, who is still a Chilian prisoner, and Vice-President Montero, who is reported to be on his way to Huaraz, inland from Chimbote, where he proposed to await the visit of Mr. Trescot, should that gentleman desire to see him. Over and above all we have of course the rule of Chili, every day becoming more and more pronounced and severe, and no one here imagines that Peru can ever come to her own again by her unassisted efforts. She must be aided from without, or England and Chili must control the west coast. We have no later news from Colonel Caceres. After his victory over Colonel Panizo at Ayacucho, his movements have not been reported. The last hope of the Pierolist faction in arms disappeared with the defeat of Panizo. Caceres had called a court-martial to decide on the fate of Panizo, Mas, Bonifaz and Vargas, the four colonels in command of the insurgent forces, and it has been rumored that they were sentenced to death on the charge of disloyalty and disobedience to the constituted authorities. Meantime there is a perceptible feeling of disgust among the Chilians. We hear from Santiago that after signing the famous protocol, and withdrawing the good offices of the United States, Mr. Trescott suddenly reopened his conference with the Chilian minister of foreign affairs, and the inference naturally is, that some new instructions must have been received from Washington. I understand, but cannot say positively, that the United States government wired Mr. Trescott to the effect that the dismemberment of Peru must be opposed and that he must insist on an opportunity being given her to pay the war indemnity by some other method.

Sir Spenser St. John, the mischief-making representative of her Britannic majesty in Peru, sails for Europe by this steamer on leave of absence. The legation remains in charge of Mr. Reginald Graham, the consul for Callao.

General Hurlbut, with his family, proposes to take passage for Panama and the United States by the steamer of the 6th of April. He will place a consular agent in charge of the archives and effects of the legation, until his return or until the appointment of another representative. The United States ship-of-war Pensacola arrived at Callao on the 18th inst. from her long trip south, and will probably take Gen. Hurlbut to Panama.

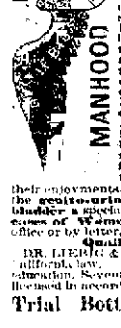
DR. LIEBIG 400 GEARY STREET,
San Francisco, Cal.



CONTINUES TO TREAT SUCCESSFULLY, by Homeopathy, every form of special or chronic disease without mercury or nauseous drugs. DR. LIEBIG'S INVIGORATOR is a positive and permanent cure for seminal weakness, nervous and physical debility, lost manhood, vital exhaustion and all the terrible results of abused nature, excesses and youthful follies. The Doctor will agree in writing to forfeit $1,000 for a case that he undertakes and fails to cure. The reason thousands cannot get cured of seminal weakness and the above diseases is owing to a complication called Prostatorrhea, which requires a special remedy. DR. LIEBIG'S INVIGORATOR No. 2 is a specific cure for Prostatorrhea. Price of either Invigorator, $2 per bottle, or 6 bottles $10. Sent to any address, securely covered from observation. Seminal Weakness and Prostatorrhea drain vitality from the body and cause numerous diseases that baffle ordinary medical treatment. If allowed to continue, the unnatural loss affects the vital organs, which causes destroying diseases, Consumption, Diabetes, Bright's Disease, Jaundice, Insanity, etc. Excesses, non-use, Abuse, Inherited Weakness, Malnutrition, Spinal and Cerebral Complaints bring on the above fatal diseases. Debility and Seminal Weakness obstruct the important and necessary acts of life and their enjoyments. Cures Guaranteed. Diseases of the genito-urinary organs, kidneys, liver and bladder a specialty. The many complaints and Diseases of Women speedily cured; consultation at office or by letter, free and confidential.

Qualified and Responsible.

DR. LIEBIG & CO. Organized in conformance with California law. Diploma procured by regular college education. Seventeen years' special practice, and duly licensed in accordance with California Medical Law.

SEALED TENDERS FOR RAILROAD TIES.

WILL BE RECEIVED UNTIL 12 M., MAY 15, 1882, for furnishing two hundred and thirty-two thousand (232,000) cross-ties along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, between Emory and Burrard Inlet, viz:

Twenty-five thousand (25,000) thereof shall be delivered at Port Moody station, or at a point on the line of said railway between Port Moody and Pitt River.

Other twenty-five thousand (25,000) thereof shall be delivered at Pitt River, or between Pitt River and Kanaka Creek.

Other twenty-five thousand (25,000) thereof at Kanaka Creek, or between Kanaka Creek and Stave River.

Other twenty-five thousand (25,000) thereof at Stave River, or between Stave River and Hatzic River.

Other forty thousand (40,000) thereof at Hatzic River, or between Hatzic River and Harrison River.

Other twenty-seven thousand (27,000) thereof at Harrison River, or between Harrison River and the lower end of Maria Slough.

Other twenty thousand (20,000) thereof at the lower end of Maria Slough, or between said lower end of Maria Slough and Tunnel "A" of said railway, which tunnel is about 15 miles below Emory's Bar.

Other ten thousand (10,000) thereof at said Tunnel "C," or between said Tunnel "C" and Tunnel "D," which latter tunnel is about 11 miles below Emory's Bar.

Other fifteen thousand (15,000) thereof at Tunnel "D" aforesaid, or between said Tunnel "D" and Tunnel "F" on said railway.

Other twenty thousand (20,000) thereof at the said Tunnel "F," or between said Tunnel "F" and Emory's Bar, or at Emory's Bar.

All such sleepers or cross-ties shall be delivered alongside the railway and within fifty feet of the center line of the track, and shall be piled up so as not to interfere with the work of construction.

The bottom of the pile shall be as nearly as practicable on a level with the grade of the railway track; and the said pile shall be so made as to permit of ready inspection and counting; and wherever such piles shall be made near water lines, bodies of water or rivers the same shall be placed in such location that the bottom of the pile shall in all events be above the line of high water.

It will be necessary to deliver at least fifteen thousand (15,000) acceptable ties per month from date of entering into contract until completion of same.

Ties must be smoothly hewed or sawed, free from all score hacks, and chipped or sawed square at both ends, eight feet long, flatted on two opposite sides to a uniform thickness of six inches, the flatted surface being not less than six inches on either side at the small end, and when sawed they shall be eight inches in width and six inches in depth.

All ties must be of sound timber, full size, and acceptable by the chief engineer of said railway, or they will not be paid for.

Ten per cent. will be reserved upon payment of account thereof until completion of contract, and ten thousand dollars ($10,000) approved security required before signing contract. The security or securities to be given must be described in the tender. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Tenders to be addressed to the undersigned, Yale, B. C., and endorsed "Tenders for Ties on Contract No. 92."
